Within 10 Miles of Metz.

As the last hours of the mighty combat drew near, French, Belgian and American forces were rapidly pushing the last German troops from France and Belgium. General Pershing's men attacked Sunday over a front of seventy-one miles from the Meuse southeastward into Lorraine. This drive, probably the last to be recorded in the war, gained an average of two or three miles and approached within ten miles of the fortress of Metz.

WORLD NOW AT PEACE.

Death Dealing Guns on Entire Battle Front Silenced at Six O'clock, Washington time, Yesterday.

The greatest war in history ended Monday morning at 6 o'clock, Washington time, after 1,576 days of horror, during which virtually the whole civilized world has been convulsed.

Announcement of the tremendous event was made at the state department at the capital at 2:45 o'clock Monday morning, and in a few seconds was flashed throughout the continent by the Associated Press.

The terse announcement of the state department did not tell anything of the scene at Marshal Foch's headquarters at the time the armistice was signed. It was stated, however, that at 6 o'clock, Paris time, the signatures of Germany's delegates were fixed to the document which blasted forever the dreams which embroiled the world in a struggle which has cost, at the very lowest estimate, 10,000,000 lives.

Following in brief are the terms of the armistice as announced by President Wilson Monday afternoon in an address to congress:

German armies to evacuate France, Belgium, Alsace-Lorraine and Luxembourg within fourteen days.

German armies must evacuate left bank of Rhine, that territory to be administered by allies.

In connection with the evacuation of the left bank of the Rhine it is provided that the allies shall hold the crossings of the river at Coblenz, Cologne and Mayence, together with bridgeheads in a thirty-kilometer radius.

The right bank of the Rhineland, that occupied by the allies, is to become neutral zone and the bank held by the Germans is to be evacuated in fifteen days. The armistice is for thirty days, but the president spoke of the war as "coming to an end."

Germany must surrender 160 submarines, 50 destroyers, six battle-cruisers, ten battleships, eight light cruisers and other miscellaneous ships.

Among the financial terms are restitution for damage done by the German armies; restitution of the cash taken from the national bank of Belgium and return of gold taken from Russia and Rumania.

The military terms include the surrender of 5,000 guns, half field and half light artillery; 30,000 machine guns; 3,000 flame throwers and 2,000 aeroplanes.

The surrender of 5,000 locomotives, 50,000 wagons, 10,000 motor lorries, the railways of Alsace-Lorraine for use by the allies and stores of coal and iron also are included.

German troops are to retire at once from any territory held by Russia, Rumania and Turkey before the war.

Allied forces are to have access to the evacuated territory either thru Dantzig or by the river Vistula. The unconditional capitulation of all German forces in East Africa within one month is provided.

Russian and Rumanian treaties are abrogated.

Armistice lasts thirty days with privilege of renewal.

Germany must surrender all supplies of war.

All allied vessels in German hands must be surrendered.

Germany must notify neutrals that they are free to trade on the seas with allied countries.

The immediate repatriation of all allied and American prisoners without reciprocal action by the allies also is included.

The Kaiser Abdicates.

William Hohenzollern, German emperor and King of Prussia abdicated the throne Saturday, and his son-in-law, Ernest August, duke of Brunswick has renounced his right of succession.

Prince Maximilian, the imperial chancellor, will remain in office until questions connected with the abdication of the emperor are settled. For the regency, Friedrich Ebert, a socialist and president of the main committee of the Reichstag, will be chancellor.

Thirty years and almost five months after he ascended the imperial throne William Hohenzollern, his armies defeated in the field, forced to sue for armistice terms and the German people rising in revolt, gives up his power. He came into authority with his country at the threshold of an era of peace and material progress; and he leaves it torn by revolution and suffering from the hardships and sacrifices of more than four years of war—virtually ruined.

Paris again celebrated in the truest sense of that word, all day Sunday and Sunday night. The city is a riot of song, color and joy.

The prefecture of the department of the Seine announced that "pursuant to instructions from the military authorities Paris may be fully lighted again."

Sunday night "gay Paris" was in her old brilliant gala dress again.
